

Rüzgar works at a bar. One day, his friend Ferit asks him for help in taking his taxi out for work. He picks up Hayal in the taxi, and they fall in love. However, when Hayal's family learns about their relationship, they strongly oppose it. They believe Rüzgar is a murderer—but the truth is far more complicated. Rüzgar's father killed his mother and framed him for the crime.

Hayal's father forbids Rüzgar from seeing his daughter, humiliates him, and threatens him. Despite everything, Rüzgar refuses to leave Hayal. As their relationship continues, Rüzgar enters a motorcycle race. But as his mind replays Hayal's father's harsh words, he loses focus and crashes, ending up in intensive care. Meanwhile, Hayal's family takes her to another city. After some time, Rüzgar recovers and finds Hayal again. But their love story is far from a fairytale—fate has other plans for them.
